

In Memoriam: Warren Sonbert A Tribute to His Life and Work

Last week, Warren Sonbert died from complications due to AIDS, tragically cutting short the life and work of one of the Bay Area's most widely celebrated independent film artists and film advocates.

The San Francisco Cinematheque invites you to share in a screening of three of his rarely shown early films and a reception in honor of his memory. Films include: Hall of Mirrors (1966), Truth Serum (1967), and Carriage Trade (1968-72).

"Like music, film operates in time: giving only so much in duration to absorb, read and digest before the new image triumphs over, reinforces, contradicts, plunges against or stares blankly at its predecessor. " (WS)
